

Day 13

Get Set, Continued

Another day to finish what you've started! We're halfway through. Maybe you came into planning late, or maybe you just haven't gotten to every project. This is a catch-up day! Time to go back and finish anything you haven't yet completed.

There was more to be done than I could get to yesterday! Perhaps you have another bookshelf that needs sorting, or you've got more things to place for sale online. You may even consider pulling some books from your non-school shelves--all those that you or your children have already read and won't get to again, or those you've never looked at! They could earn some money for you. Go ahead and finish that today! There are several things I'd put away for this fall that I've determined now that I'm NOT using after all, so that entire stack needs to be pulled out. I also want to read one catalog that had some new information in it, and check on two curricula I'd never heard of before this year! Enjoy getting caught up, or take a break!